

From Somewhere

by The Tonk Honkys © 2013

Was long gone before I left home
California on my mind and demons in my soul
Yeah they talk to me, and they say a lot of things
Should've called, but didn't have the nerve
'Cause I hate goodbyes and there's no words for what you mean to me -
You mean everything
Got to town and it's colder than hell
Hills are burning, everybody just says "oh well"
Got nothing but these tears I'm crying for you
Now I'm singing:

Good night from somewhere in Los Angeles (x4)

Years pass as I search around
For something other than stars in the ground
Who knew it'd be this hard walking down this boulevard
Can't help but think of what I've left behind
And more and more it piles up in the back of my mind
This is my song to you, and it's my only truth
Met a girl who said her name was Jesus,
Dressed to the nines, leather boots and a red dress
For a dollar she said she can show me the light
Now I'm singing:

Good night from somewhere in Los Angeles (x4)